Youth are most confident arriving on time, respecting co-workers, and working as a team. They want more math and more chances to see themselves in a STEM job - the growth areas for the next camp season.

In their words: the most helpful part was learning how to talk to people better; what they wish they had learned was more math. The camp's strongest theme was showing up ready and treating people right, and its clearest wish was more math.

"I wish I learned more math."
